A CARD.

The last number of the Spirit of the Age, a paper published in the city of Raleigh, contains an article in its editorial column under the caption "Drunk Journalism," which I am compelled to notice outside of my usual columns, and my position as editor. The article referred to charges upon the News that it
"presumes to dictate to the business firms of the city as to how they should vote; and intimates that the wonderful influence of the News will be used against them, unless they vote the Democratic ticket;" adding:

"Now we have nothing whatever to do with politics, and no preference at all between the two political parties; but protest against the domineering spirit that undertakes to rule the good citizens of Raleigh with a rod of iron," &c.

The article says:
"The News article bears the unmistakable impress of having been written by a drunken man, in favor of drunkenness."

The scurrilous article thus concludes:
"His article, no doubt, intended to whip in and control party men, will only make them the stronger in favor of temperance; and they will have the additional inducement for doing so, having observed the indecent example, and received the unmerited castigation of a drunken editor."

As the City Editor of the Raleigh DAILY NEWS, and the author of the article that brought forth such base calumnies, totally uncalculated for I do hereby publicly denounce the article and offer offensive and slanderous epithets as MEAN, LOW AND CONTUMACIOUS, and the author
as a willful and malicious liar.

E. C. WOODSON,
City Editor Raleigh DAILY NEWS.

COVER THEM OVER.—The author of this poem is Will.
M. Carlton, one of the most beautiful writers of the new world:

Cover them over with beautiful flowers,
Dye them with garlands, those brothers
of ours,
Dying silently, by night and by day,
Sowing the seeds of their manhood away,
Years they had marked for the joys of the brave.

Years they must waste in the mouldering grave.
All the bright laurels they waited to bloom,
Fell from their heads when they fell to the tomb.
Give them the meed they have won in the past,
Give them the honors their future foresees;
Give them the chaplets they wear in the state,
Give them the laurels they lost with their bodies.

Cover them over—yes, cover them over—
Pat, hush, brother and sister, Crown in your hearts those dead heroes of
ours,
And cover them over with beautiful flowers.

Cover the faces that motionless lie,
Save from the light of the glorious eye, Faces once decked with the smiles of the day,
Faces now marked with the frown of decay.
Eyes that looked friendship and love to the world,
Lips that the thoughts of affection made known,
Brows that have soothed in the hour of distress,
Cheeks you have brightened by tender care,
Oh! how they gleamed at the nation's first cry.

Oh! how they streamed when they bade
you good-bye!
Oh! how they gleamed in the battle's fierce flame!
Oh! how they paled when the death angel came!

Cover them over, oh! cover them over,
Wash with the light of the glorious eye, Kiss in your hearts those dead heroes of
ours,
And cover them over with beautiful flowers.

Cover their hands that are lying unfolded,
Hands that once held the plow and the spear,
Hands to you, mother, in infancy shown,
Hands to you, father, in manhood's prime,
Hands, where you, sister, when tired and drowsy,
Held for protection, and counsel and aid;
Hands that you, brother, in agony knew,
Hands that you, wife, with a loving and adieu.

Bravely the musket and sword they bore, Wounds of affliction they wore in their
glory,
Grasped the sword for a while and a light
Catching the mantle of a gallant's
glory.

Cover them over, oh! cover them over,
Parent, husband, and brother and lover;
Crown in your hearts those dead heroes of
ours,
And cover them over with beautiful flowers.

Cover the feet that have trodden so hard,
Feet that have trodden the flower ways
close to your hearts in the old happy days;
Feet that have trodden the flower ways
close to your hearts in the old happy days;
Feet that have trodden the flower ways
close to your hearts in the old happy days;

Now cover them over with beautiful flowers.
Cover the hearts that have beaten so high, Hearts that have throbbed for the nation's
glory,
Hearts that have yearned for the homes they left behind them in the hour of glory.

Now cover them over with beautiful flowers.
Cover the thousands who sleep far away,
Sleep where the friends cannot find them
to-day,
They who in mountain and hillside
and where they lie.

Rest where they wearied and lie where they lie, Siftly the grass blades creep round their repose,
Sweet above them the wild flowers blossom.

When the blue sky shall swing open its gates,
And our long column march silently thro',
Then from the blood that has flowed for the right,
Crown shall spring upward, untarnished and true.

Then the great ones of each martyrred son,
Proudly shall hear the good tidings "well done."
Blessings for garlands shall cover them over.

Parent and husband and brother and lover, God will reward those dead heroes of
ours,
And cover them over with beautiful flowers.

THE DAILY NEWS.

SUNDAY, MAY 10, 1874.

JORDAN STONE, Managing Editor.

ELECTION AUGUST 6th, 1874.

FOR SECT. OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION.

COL. STEPHEN D. POOL, OF CRAVEN.

The Daily News is now the only paper in Raleigh that gives every morning the latest markets and other telegraphic reports. The public should note this fact.

The Sixth Judicial District.

The members of the Democratic Executive Committee for the Sixth Judicial District are requested to meet in Raleigh on Tuesday, the 20th day of June, 1874.

C. M. Cook, Chm'n.

Seventh Judicial District.

A Democratic-Conservative Convention will be held in Graham on Wednesday, the 3d day of June, 1874, for the purpose of nominating candidates for the offices of Judge and Solicitor for the 7th Judicial District.

G. F. BAXON, Chm'n. Judl. Ex. Com.

In the English Courts a number of cases have been, and are being tried for bribery in the recent elections.

THE Republican papers of New York are daily growing less confident of re-electing Gov. Dix. Quite a number of them are now outspoken in the opinion that a half-dozen Democrats can be picked out who would lay old Mr. Dix in the shade.

THE gallant Cockade City of Virginia, undaunted by the late veto of Gov. KEMPER which thwarted the most ardent wishes of her citizens, have obtained a new register of the vote of the city, have largely reduced the negro majority by an honest registration, and a most strenuous and, we trust, successful effort will be made on the 25th inst. to place the city under the control of an honest administration.

DISAPPOINTMENT must sink the heart of WM. B. DEEGES, of Norfolk, Va., for after having been immortalized by the aid of the telegraph, by the announcement that he held the lucky ticket which drew $12,500 in the late Norfolk lottery, it turns out that the ticket was held by a Chicago gentleman. We wonder if there is not some mistake about the $25,000 prize?—we thought we bought the prize ticket, and will not believe otherwise until the lucky RED divides with us.

It is quite evident that the currency question will enter largely into Fall elections in the Western States. Both inflation and contraction journals declare that the mass of the people are on their side of the question. The majority of the Republican papers, anxious to heal the breach in their party are silent on subject. The Springfield (Illinois) State Journal declares that the Republican State Convention will endorse the course of Senator LOGAN and OGLEBY, without any censure of the President for the exercise of his veto prerogative.

In speaking of the proceedings of the House of Representatives on Tuesday night, the correspondent of the New York Tribune says:

"The House was in Committee on the Indian bill. The attendance being slight no quorum was present. A call of the House followed, and members behaved in an unseemly manner. The Chairman had no control over the Committee, and there was the noisiest confusion. Members answered to their names from the galleries, some going so far as to cry down to the Chairman that they were sick. Such conduct made the unthinking laugh; but for the American Congress it was a pitiful spectacle, and it received much unfavorable comment among the more respectable members to-day."

CANDIDATES for the Maine United States Senatorship are rapidly coming to the front in that State. Somebody is determined to put on Mr. HAMILTON's old slippers. Ex-Governor PERHAM and J. H. DRUMMOND, of Portland, are the latest appearances.

Summer and Fall Elections.

Several State elections take place this Summer and Fall, and the results thereof are beginning to be speculated upon. Oregon leads off in the field—the Democratic, Republican, Farmers' and Temperance. Oregon is Democratic, and is expected to give an increased majority that way, notwithstanding the various side issues. This State votes on the first Thursday in August, and all the signs of the times point to a signal Conservative-Democratic triumph. A few days after Kentucky will hold its election for State officers, and will, no doubt, give an increased Democratic majority. In September Maine and Vermont elect State officers, and will probably undergo but little political change. Then will follow New York, and later Illinois and other States, in which the Grangers will, no doubt, have something to say. In Indiana the farmers are preparing to nominate a separate ticket, and present indications are that their example will be followed by those of Iowa, Wisconsin, Michigan and Minnesota.

Two following delicious morsels is dish up by the Washington correspondent of the Boston Herald. The question here involved is, can we afford to pay such a price to get BUTLER out of the country even for a short time? The answer is emphatic: We can! It is to be hoped that WASHINGTON will speedily arrive. We congratulate the decent people of Massachusetts on the happy prospect:

"It is predicted here that if E. B. WASHINGTON, our Minister to France, accepts the Treasury portfolio, Gen. BUTLER will go to Paris as his successor. The idea that BUTLER will run for Governor next Autumn, is scouted here, as he is believed to be in no condition, either physically or politically, to make another contest of that sort."

The General Conference of the M. E. Church South, has been in session in Louisville during the past week, with a large attendance present, and Bishop PAYNE presiding, assisted by Bishops PIERCE, KAVANAUGH, WIGHTMAN, DOUGGETT, MARVIN, McTYRE and KEENER. The Chicago Tribune, alluding to the present session of this Conference, utters the following truism which must be acknowledged by all denominations:

"This is the month for Ecclesiastical Conventions, and already the Southern Methodists have come together in General Conference. The first and most enduring effect of the war of the late war was to separate and keep asunder nearly every one of the Protestant denominations. The Methodist and Presbyterians are still divided into Northern and Southern Churches, and their annual Assemblies and Conferences devote much time every year to reviving and discussing the dead issues of the past. The Southern Methodists began their session yesterday by considering resolutions in relation to property belonging to the Southern Church, and to the wrongfully in the possession of the Northern Church. And so the weary quarrel goes on among the very people who ought to have been the first reconciled, while the gentiles and soulless politicians have mutually agreed to forgive and forget."

Good News from the Old North State.

Writing under the above editorial caption the Norfolk Landmark, in its issue of the 8th inst., has the following to say in regard to our approaching election. The Landmark is correct. We have the means of complete redemption from Radicalism in our hands, and will use them in August next to some effectual purpose:

"North Carolina has the means to shake off the deadly clutch of Radicalism if she chooses to do it, and from the election returns which have been made in a number of recent municipal elections we are hopeful that her people are at last about to unite for their own protection. They need no platform beyond opposition to the powers that be—the successors to HOLDEN, LITTLEFIELD & Co., and this is simple enough, it seems to us, to admit an adjustment of all individual prejudices and party affiliations, as between the old Whigs and Democrats, who for the attainment of a common end should stand shoulder to shoulder in the pending canvass. So far as the indications go, there is at last a happy unity among the people of the Old North State, and it is high time that they should be united. They have been plundered, outraged, trampled on and overrun by native renegades and foreign adventurers, and have bled at every pore of their treasury and pockets. A less resolute and high-spirited people would have been crushed by the wrongs and oppressions they have endured; but wise by experience, and purged by the late war, they have passed through which they have passed, they now stand with their faces resolutely turned towards the enemy. Their fate is in their own hands, and we are of those who believe they will vindicate their rights and re-establish their political reputation."

The oldest voter registered in Petersburg gave his age at 105. His name is Henry Wood, and he remembers Washington and Lafayette as well as if he had nursed 'em both.

Commodore Vanderbilt has added another one hundred thousand to the gift of a half million dollars for a University of the Southern Methodist Church, to be located near Nashville, Tennessee.

At Santa Barbara, California, recently, the Press was the astonished recipient of $1,925 in gold, the gift of citizens who felt "that the Press had performed, and was still performing, a noble work for the town."

THE Norfolk Landmark has the following to say of the recent excursion from that place to this city. We return thanks for complimentary allusions. The Landmark says:

"We reached Weldon, the city of railroads, about 3:30 o'clock, p. m., where several of our Portsmouth friends met with us to return on the mail train. We remained at Weldon only long enough to walk over the town. Our train was taken in charge here by Captain A. B. Andrews, Superintendent of the Raleigh & Gaston Railroad, and hurried on over that road. We stopped at Kittrell's Springs, and were served a splendid supper by W. B. Davis, the gentlemanly proprietor of the hotel. This is a beautiful Summer resort and the hotel is now crowded with guests, the most of whom are from Boston, Mass. We reached the City of Oaks about 9 o'clock Wednesday night, and were quartered at the Yarrow House. Our party were up and breakfasted early yesterday morning for a ride over the city. We visited the State House and had a view of the magnificent scenery of the surrounding country. Raleigh is really a beautiful city well laid out, with its streets shaded by oaks and elms, and almost every private residence has a tastefully laid off yard ornamented with beautiful flowers and shrubbery. Business seemed to be prospering, and we were told that five hundred buildings were in process of erection, among which are the United States Postoffice, a female college, and an asylum for deaf and dumb negroes. While in the city we had the pleasure of meeting the staff of the Raleigh News, to whom we are greatly indebted for their kind attentions. Our party left Raleigh about 11 o'clock yesterday, highly delighted with their visit, and reached Portsmouth last evening at 6 o'clock. The stockholders were very much pleased with the condition of their road, and expressed great satisfaction at the management of President Robinson and Superintendent Gildie."

In speaking of the bad effect the passage of the civil rights bill will have on popular education, Col. JOHN M. FLEMING, Superintendent of Public Instruction of the State of Tennessee, says:

"If mixed schools were ordered by law they would not be attended, and were they attended the result would be rather a juvenile war of races than a profitable rivalry in studies. The people cannot be brought to regard the schools as merely civil organizations subject only to political government; the school is too close to the family circle not to be subject in a great degree to social laws and influences. Already the detrimental effect of the proposition to include public schools within the operation of the civil rights bill has been severely felt in Tennessee. The mere pendency of the bill in Congress, with a possibility of its passage, has begotten hurtful apprehensions. The county courts of quite a number of counties that last year levied additional school taxes have this year either deferred action on the subject or referred the matter to the people. School officers throughout the State have been for some time uneasy and distrustful. I have, myself, been, and still am, in hesitancy in regard to projected measures of school policy which an enforcement of the civil rights bill in reference to schools would render valueless. Certainly, no sane man, at all acquainted with the temper and tastes of our people, can expect that any further contributions in the way of school taxes, would be drawn from the public, by either a legislature or a county court, for the co-education of the white and colored races. On the contrary, should Congress undertake to mix the schools, all school levies would cease. The school houses would be closed, and the colored people would find that while in the letter of the law they would enjoy the right to public school whatever, there would be no public schools to enter, and that, in grasping at a shadow, they have lost the substance."

What is true in regard to the matter in Tennessee is true as to all of the Southern States in which legislation is directed and controlled by white men. If this bill is enacted into a law, then farewell, and forever, to everything like popular education in the South.

The Southern Methodist Church Conference.

The Chicago Tribune thus lucidly explains the difference existing between the Methodist Church North and South, and the effect this is now being made at the Convention of the Church South, which has been in session in Louisville during the past week, to harmonize the discordant notes of the Church. Says the Tribune:

"The seventh session of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, which is now sitting in Louisville, is one of extraordinary interest in the history of the Church. The slavery question, which had long agitated the Methodist Church (nearly all the members of that Church in the South being slaveholders), led to a division of the Church in 1844. In 1845, the Methodist Episcopal Church South was organized, operating mainly in the South. The same cause also severed the inter-communion previously existing between the Methodist Church South and the English Church. Their relations with each other and the Methodist Church North are the principal topics engaging the attention of the session. With reference to the English Church, official action has already been taken in the form of a document, and the General Conference of Great Britain, which sets forth the fact of the removal of slavery, which has heretofore separated them, and adds: 'The Church in the United States has cause to be thankful that nothing exists to prevent official intercourse between your General Conference and our own, and we pray that both Churches and both countries may be firmly united with themselves by concord, and to one another by unity.' As the telegraph has not yet intimated that any action has been taken with reference to reunion with the Methodist Church North, we presume this matter is still pending. In 1848, the Church South sent a delegate to the General Conference of the Church North, but he was rejected upon the ground that, as important interests were in litigation between the two Churches, the reception of the delegate would compromise their claims. Since that time there has been no official intercourse between the two, although the subject of reunion between the two has been often discussed; but at the present time some definite and formal action will be taken, as three delegates from the Church North are in attendance, viz: The Rev. C. H. Fowler, D. D., the Rev. S. Hunt, D. D., and Gen. Clinton B. Fisk, who are empowered to offer the hand of fraternity. It is not by any means certain that the offer will be accepted, as the sentiment of the majority of the denominations South is opposed to organic unity; but it is expected that a very respectable minority will show itself in favor of immediate action in bringing it about ultimately. Considering the effect upon the Methodist Church South of the war, which almost entirely crippled it, it is now in a very healthy condition, having eight Bishops, 3,000 traveling preachers, and 680,000 members. The Publishing House has a capital of $314,637 over and above all liabilities, while the contributions to missionary work from June 2, 1870, to April 16, 1874, amounted to $394,466, the expenses during the same period being only $14,390."

Marshal Serrano's secretary is credited with being the most Spanish of Spanish reporters. In order to enlighten the Madrid government, recently, touching the condition of affairs in the war district, he telegraphed: "Bad times continue in the North."
